

Diwali Party

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4 | 10-11:30 A.M.

Read this short story with your child to preview the program together.

Do you see the bright candles?

When you see a candle, you know something special is happening!

Many people around the world light candles when they celebrate the holiday Diwali (say it like this: dee-vollee).

Diwali is known as the “Festival of Lights.”

There are many reasons people celebrate Diwali. One reason is to celebrate light overcoming darkness!

Some families decorate their spaces with beautiful rangoli (say it like this: run-go-lee) to bring good luck and welcome family and friends.

Some families also enjoy special foods when they celebrate Diwali.

We are going to have a Diwali Party at the library this year.

Everyone can come! You can come if you celebrate Diwali with your family every year or if you are curious about Diwali. You can come if you just like parties.

At our library party, you can watch people tell stories with dances.

You can make crafts, color, and play.

Will you come learn more about Diwali,
the Festival of Lights, at the library?

We hope to see you here!
